Chinese New Year

The Jade Emperor asked all the animals to come together and decide who the New Year would be named after.

The animals could not decide which order they should go in so they had a race across a river.

All animals swam well but the Ox was the fastest. The Rat was very cunning and rode on the back of the Ox, jumping off and getting to the other side first, winning the race.

The years were named after each of the animals in turn. The Tiger came third.
